PRESIDENT RESUMES CONFERENCES WITH SENATORS ON THE LEAGUE House Finally Approves Enforcement Legislation For National Dry Laws

FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE DENIES WILSON RIGHT TO SEND REPARATION AGENT ABROAD

McNARY TO FOLLOW PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 22—Developments in the League of Nations fight today were as follows:

First. President Wilson resumed his efforts to convert the Republican senators who oppose the league or who are undecided in their course.

Second. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee refused to grant the President's request that he be permitted to name an American representative on the Allied Reparation Committee before the signing of the treaty. It was pointed out that had the President gained what he wanted the United States would have to Paris a man who would be carrying out the provisions of the treaty without our first having ratified the treaty. Accession to the request of the President would have compromised the position of this nation on this matter.

Third. Debate on the league was resumed in the Senate.

That Wilson considers his conferences with the Republican senators of the utmost importance was indicated today from the fact that he left his sick bed to see callers. The rebuff given him by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is regarded as significant.

Senator McNary of Oregon, today stated flatly that he would oppose any effort to strike Article Ten from the treaty and served notice on his Republican colleagues that he was in favor of only such reservations as were of a purely explanatory character. McNary has seen the President and evidently the President was able to make an impression on him.

WASHINGTON, July 22—Saying that Germany would not become a member of the league of nations for fifty years, Senator Johnson of South Dakota today made a speech in favor of the covenant. Johnson advocated the changing of Article 8 of the covenant in such a manner as would prohibit the manufacture of poison gas and high explosive materials.

HOUSE BEGINS THOROUGH PROBE OF MEXICAN SITUATION IN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, July 22—The House began today a complete investigation of the Mexican situation. The program as outlined by Representative Mondell, leader of the Republicans, will be to form a definite line towards Mexico. Ambassador Fletcher will be the first witness heard. The preliminary hearing will be before the Rules Committee after which a special committee will go into the matter.

Ambassador Fletcher declared to the House Rules Committee that at least fifty-one Americans have been murdered in Mexico during the last two years and that in no instance does he have any knowledge of a prosecution and punishment. In some instance arrests were made but no notification of punishment was ever made to him, he said.

"Is Carranza fulfilling his mission as a government?" he was asked by Representative Cambell. "I think he is," said Fletcher. "Apparently he is making an effort to maintain friendly relations with the United States."

WASHINGTON, July 21—The American sailors of the U. S. S. United States Government intends to, Chyenne, by an armed force along handle the new outrages against that stream. GREAT BRITAIN APPROVES TREATY

LONDON, July 21—Great Britain today placed the seal of its approval on the peace treaty and League of Nations. The vote taken in the House of Commons resulted in the affirmative 163 to 4. An attempt to defeat the treaty and league by injection of the Irish problem was voted down decisively.

FLAMING BALLOON DROPS ON BANK KILLING ELEVEN

CHICAGO, ILL., July 22.—The death toll of the Chicago aeronautical accident was increased to twelve today with the death of Harry Norton, a photographer for a newspaper who was in the "blimp". Norton leaped to the ground in a parachute, landing heavily. His last and only words were, "Where are my plates?" He dropped in LaSalle street, the "Wall street" of Chicago. It developed that the city corner was a witness to the accident. The coroner is conducting an investigation.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Nine employees of the Illinois Savings and Trust Company and two members of the crew of the Goodyear Rubber Company dirigible "Wingfoot" were dead today—victims of the flying terror.

While two hundred clerks toiled at their ledgers and journals closing up the business of the day and messengers scurried to and fro to the hum of high business pressure a shadow passed over the skylight through which the banking room received its light—a darkening shadow—a smoke cloud—then a crash and the body of a man was hurled through the skylight, closely followed by a shapeless mass of twisted steel and heavy machinery. With the descent of the death-dealing metal there came blinding flames which began to lick up spread over the banking rooms like a blanket. Men and women glanced upward from the floors and from the galleries—screamed and with the sight of flaming pivots of gasoline hysteria broke loose. The frightened screams of the women rose above the men. The men succeeded in liberating seventeen girls through the gallery windows. The banking room was transformed in an instant from a scene of quiet to a seething furnace. Evelyn Myers, telephone operator, was the first to die. She was operating her switchboard when the shadow hovered over the room and a cylinder of gas lit on her table. A witness in describing the scene said, "there was a sizzle like that of a gigantic frying pan". After that smoke and gas obscured the scene. Many of the victims could not be identified except through their clothing which remained in the cloak rooms. No rescue could be effected until the firemen had subdued the flames with chemicals. Many when rescued were entirely de-

COUNTY NATIONAL BANK IMPROVEMENT

Contractor Ashley Rishell has been chosen to make the addition to the County National bank, the contract for this work having been let very recently.

The plan contemplates the utilization of the A. J. Hagerty store room which property was purchased by the bank several months ago.

The contemplated improvement will cost anywhere from $35,000 to $40,000 and when completed the County National will have the largest, most conveniently arranged and finely appointed bank building in this section of Pennsylvania.

PHYSICAL CONDITION OF WILSON IMPROVES

WASHINGTON — Discussing the health of the president today Dr. Grayson, his personal physician stated that 'the president is getting along as well as can be expected. He is weak however as weather conditions are unfavorable to the fight against the disease. He is responding to treatment though and we believe he will fully recover speedily.' Whether the president's health will have any effect on his plans for a speaking tour of the nation is not known.

FRED THOMPSON BOUGHT WINDSOR HOTEL PROPERTY

Fred J. Thompson, who recently disposed of his interest in the Clearfield Electric Supply Company and Clearfield Auto Supply Company, has purchased the Windsor Hotel property from James Mahaffey and expects to take possession of same about the first of August.

It is Mr. Thompson's intention to convert the building into a business block. With this end in view the main floor will be lowered to the street level and two fine store rooms made fronting on Market street. A store room fronting on Third street will also be provided, it being the purpose to extend the present kitchen out to Third street.

Handsome late style store fronts will be added on both the Market and Third street sides and the building made one of our handsomest business blocks.

The stairway to the second floor will be changed around and entrance to same will be made from Third street. The second and third floors of the building will be utilized as a rooming house and the forty rooms newly fitted up for the accommodation of lodgers.

The present sample room and garage on the rear of the lot at the alley will also be converted into a store room which will add greatly to Third street's importance as a business street.

The improvement to the property will cost approximately $15,000, which will make Mr. Thompson a $60,000 investment. The new owner has already had many applications for new business places but as he has not fully decided what offers to accept for his rooms we are unable to state at this time just what lines will be represented in the new stores.

OLD BUCKTAIL IN TOWN

Comrade Joseph Henry of Bell township, was a Clearfield visitor today, and attracted quite a bit of attention as he marched up street with a bucktail stuck in his hat. Comrade Henry was a member of Company K of Kane's First Rifles, and one of that aggregation of Pennsylvania mountaineers whose glorious deeds embellish the pages of history of the war of the rebellion. The ancient badge of courage attracted the few remaining old vets to Comrade Henry's side and the many hard campaigns of the days of '61 to '65 were talked over for some time before he left for home.

WASHINGTON, July 22—The House of Representatives today gave its final approval to national prohibition when it passed a measure providing for enforcement of both war time and federal prohibition. The bill passed after a final effort was made to recommit the bill and substitute a much more liberal measure introduced by Representative Igoe of Missouri. The vote on the recommitment was 136 to 265. The final vote on the prohibition enforcement measure was 287 for, 101 against and three voting present.

RACE RIOTS IN WASHINGTON ARE CONTINUING

A resolution asking the President to proclaim martial law for the District of Columbia because of the continued rioting between whites and blacks was introduced in the House this afternoon by Representative Emerson of Ohio.

WASHINGTON, July 22—Additional troops will be rushed to Washington today in an effort to control the rioting which has continued for three nights. Up to this time there have been four killed, two seriously injured and more than thirty wounded in the fighting. Four hundred soldiers and marines have reinforced the regular capital police force of 700 men but this force has been found unable thus far to cope with the situation. While putting down disturbances in one place outbreaks occur in other sections of the city. The negroes under armed guard, the whites appear to have obtained the best of the situation in the early hours of the rioting. This morning the principal avenues of the city were full of automobiles containing negroes who shouted to the whites "come on."

Daylight and a terrific thunder storm put an end to the hostilities of the night but there is a fear that the fighting will be resumed tonight. Major Pullman, head of the capital police conferred with the military authorities today and as a result of this conference it is expected that by tonight the city will be a virtual armed camp. Two hundred arrests have been made.

This morning a mob of one hundred negroes marched in procession towards the white residential district but a posse of police and soldiers dispersed them. The whites also tried to gain admittance to the black quarters of the city today when over a thousand marched past the White House enroute for the black belt. A cordon of police and soldiers succeeded in holding them back.

At a late hour this morning a negro fired a shot from a fast moving street car while another shot a cavalry from ambush. Sergeant Murphy, a marine, was shot through the jaw while standing on duty at a corner in the negro district. His assailant attacked him.

WASHINGTON, July 22—A detective was killed and two negroes mortally wounded in race riots that broke out late last night. A second policeman and two white men were also shot but not seriously. Scores more, both whites and blacks were injured by the rocks and other missiles that were used.

The detective, Harry Wilson, of Central station, was killed a few minutes before midnight when he with a party of other detectives, stormed a house in the southwest part of the city in search of a negro believed to be one of the principal instigators of the disturbance earlier in the evening. As the police battered down the door a shot was fired. Detective Wilson in the lead, collapsed, with a bullet in his breast. Braving further fire, the other detectives rushed in. At the end of the narrow hall they found the groveling negroes who had fired the shot. The pistol was still in her hand. Wilson died a few minutes later.

The disturbances are the outgrowth of the high feeling against negroes caused by the recent attacks that have been made on white women in Washington. At midnight the capital of the nation was practically an armed camp. Police and soldiers on foot and horses

CLAIM CASHIER TOOK $900,000 OF BANK MONEY

PHILADELPHIA, July 22.—Ralph Moyer, cashier of the North Penn Bank, was arraigned in the municipal police court here this afternoon charged on six counts with crimes in connection with the closing of the bank. He was held in $25,000 bail for a further hearing on Thursday.

HARRISBURG, July 21—Ralph P. Moyer, cashier of the North Penn bank, of Philadelphia, which was suspended two days ago by the state commissioner, confessed that the shortage of the bank would approximate $800,000. His confession was made to James W. McBurney, the special receiver in charge of the affairs of the institution.

Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher gives out this information tonight, which he said, was received by him from McBurney over the telephone.

Commissioner Fisher, immediately upon receipt of the information, ordered Moyer's arrest. The cashier faces the possible charges of perjury, embezzlement, misapplication of funds, rehypothecation of securities, mutilating records of a bank and receiving deposits when it was known to him that the bank was insolvent.

The frauds, according to the information, has been going on for two years. The state bank examiners were unable to detect them because, according to Moyer's confession, loose leaves were substituted by him in the ledger when the examiner came around. The substitutes did not disclose any discrepancy.

Deputy Commissioner Cameron said that Moyer told him yesterday that only $50 stood between his family and starvation. At that time Mr. Cameron advised him to tell the truth as the officials would be certain to find it out. Today, Moyer went to the bank, broke down and confessed to McBurney.

Commissioner Fisher made it plain that anyone who obtained money illegally from the bank would be forced to make restitution.

DUBOIS DOLLAR DAY TO BE HELD ON AUGUST SEVENTH

At a meeting of the merchants of DuBois held yesterday morning in the Community Association rooms it was decided to hold the semi-annual Dollar Day on August 7th. Great enthusiasm prevailed among the merchants and the talk was all to the effect that Dollar Day this summer would be the biggest event ever held. The merchants have done an unusual good business during the past season and the practical wind-up of the summer selling will find them with many odds and ends that they will place on sale on this date. It has always been the disturbance earlier in the evening.

As the police battered down the door a shot was fired. Detective Wilson in the lead, collapsed, with a bullet in his breast. Braving further fire, the other detectives rushed in. At the end of the narrow hall they found the groveling negroes who had fired the shot. The pistol was still in her hand. Wilson died a few minutes later.

The disturbances are the outgrowth of the high feeling against negroes caused by the recent attacks that have been made on white women in Washington. At midnight the capital of the nation was practically an armed camp. Police and soldiers on foot and horses

FACE THE FACTS

It has long been evident that some drastic action be taken to curb the prevalent immorality among juveniles in this county. Each session of court has seen an increase in this class of crime and particularly in those cases wherein adults were contributors of the delinquency of young girls. This is not an occasion for prudishness but calls for the united support of every citizen. The quicker we face the facts and remedy the evils the better for our community. Making ourselves believe that the situation is not bad and dismissing the action of the Court as a mere formality is Pharisical.

We are inclined to think that laxity on the part of police officials both in the borough of Clearfield and in the county at large is responsible to a large degree for prevailing conditions. The streets of Clearfield will stand some cleaning up not of the brush and water variety.

WHAT A CENT WOULD DO

An increase in railroad freight rates is so generally accepted by dealers as an excuse for increasing the price of commodities subject to the higher rates that some remarks on this text by Chairman Julius Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific system deserve attention. Pointing out in his annual report that the popular impression of this relation of higher rates to living costs is "grossly exaggerated," Mr. Kruttschnitt says:

No coin is small enough to represent any of these increases in cost, but if the dealer should add one copper cent in each case to the 1910 prices to reimburse him for the increased cost of his commodity due to increased freight rates he would grossly overcharge the purchaser in every case. He would make him pay nearly double the proper amount in the case of a pair of shoes and over six times the proper amount in the case of a pound of ham or bacon.

The statement makes an interesting contribution to the education which consumers are nowadays receiving in the matter of "fronting." Certainly railroad and other corporations have sins enough to answer for on this score. But when the account is finally balanced the plain everyday American may discover that he is the victim less of oppression higher up than of extortion lower down and on his own level.

WOULDN'T HEAR TO "FOURTEEN POINTS"

Not even the far-famed Balm of Gilead would be sufficient to save the lacerated feelings of the few "tight wads" on the list of this year's Chautauqua guarantors, were one to judge of the extent of said lacerations from the volume of the wails set up by these aforesaid parsimonious ones at the scheduled early morning meeting held for the purpose of circumventing Mayor Chase's Public Safety Department's threatened $2000 fines.

It was some meeting. Everybody kicked but "Jeff" Weaver. He couldn't kick as one of his ankles is broken and he needed the other to stand on, and as a fellow couldn't kick very hard sitting down anyhow, "Jeff" was made chairman of the meeting.

Sixty-three witnesses were examined but not a single clue as to the taker of the signs was gleaned and oceans of gloom settled down over, around and about the assemblage.

An effort was made to compromise with the authorities but the Mayor refused to treat. The reasons advanced for a compromise or arbitration thru an unfortunate circumstance numbered just fourteen and it is thought that the figures may have had something to do with it. The Mayor is not impressed by fourteen points, he says he has all the trouble he wants observing the ten commandments.

The theory advanced by some of the fearful was that the Hyde City Nick Carter had struck "pay dirt" and was close upon the trail of the sign-tacking law violator. However, be that as it may, the law breaker refuses to come to the front and end the agony.

Meanwhile the Chautauqua proposes to keep right on a coming and will be here July 29th to Aug. 4 if they have to sue out an injunction restraining the local and Hyde City man hunters from interfering with their entertainment. Look at the program for the week and you'll not blame them for wanting to give it here.

They have a curious way of taking the census in China, where the enumeration of the inhabitants is an annual affair. The oldest master of every ten houses is required to count the families and make a list, which is sent to the imperial tax officers.

NEW BELL BOOKS OUT

The telephone books are being distributed by the Bell Telephone Company in Clearfield and vicinity.

A new feature is the list of fire wardens in the county named. The value of this information may readily be appreciated, as it gives everyone an opportunity to be of benefit to his community in the event of forest fires occurring in his vicinity. Reference to the list of wardens is a simple matter and prompt action on the part of the person who discovers the fire will doubtless result in the saving of thousands of dollars of valuable forest lands and probably lives as well.

H. M. Peck, local manager of the Company, tells us that many new subscribers have been added to their lists and recommends that all subscribers consult the new directory before making calls, as there has been a large number of changes.

"BULL MOOSE" PLAN

CONFERENCE JULY 29

HARRISBURG, July 20—With the avowed purpose of opening a campaign for the election of delegates to the next Republican national convention who will favor a candidate embodying the policies and ideals of Theodore Roosevelt and of starting a national movement to this end, a conference of Pennsylvania "Bull Moose" has been called here on July 29. The conference is the result of a small conference held in Philadelphia in June, over which Gifford Pinchot presided.

The call for the Harrisburg conference is signed by: Gifford Pinchot, Pike county; William Flinn, Allegheny county; M. Clyde Kelly, Allegheny county; Lex N. Mitchell, Jefferson county; George F. Holmes, Philadelphia; Major I. B. Brown, Erie county; Allen W. Hagenbach, Lehigh county; Robert C. Bair, York county; Thomas A. H. Hay, Northampton county; J. V. Clark, Washington county; W. Lovell Baldrige, Blair county; Robert F. Rich, Clinton county.

Mr. Pinchot announced that progressive Republican senators and congressmen in Washington know of the Pennsylvania conference, are in vigorous sympathy with it, and that Senator Miles Poindexter of the state of Washington, would be in Harrisburg to address the conference.

NOT SOURED

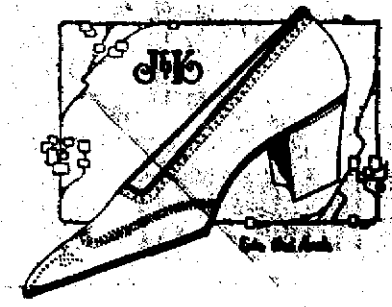

"So you lost your case in court, Mr. Gloom?" said an acquaintance.

"Yes," replied J. Fuller Gloom. "And still I am not soured by it; I do not think all lawyers are dishonest. Lincoln was a lawyer, and he was honest. Rufus Choate was honest. Probably some of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were lawyers and honest. And I know the names of several other lawyers, also dead, who were honest."

Designed for Youthful Wearers

It takes considerable imagination to suit a deep cape collar replaces the quite grown up for those who are not grown up. But a smaller collar would not half so stylish. It is a new, to express youth by varying the cut and finish of garments. The young class and place them in the young girl's wardrobe. Generally, in suits, this is accomplished by making roots, vogue as to in and simple as to line and by following current fashion as becomes youth at a distance. The two suits presented in the picture are examples of good designing to meet the needs of the class from fourteen to sixteen, and they are recommended for young women who affect youthful styles, providing their figures are girlish enough to suit these models.

Jersey cloth suit, day or any of the standard suitings will make the smart suit shown at the left of the picture successfully, but the finer weaves appear to be the best choice for misses' suits. This one is of large colored serge trimmed with rows of narrow silk band to match and insets of navy blue tulle. The skirt is noticeably wider than those in vogue for older women and is gathered in at the waistline. Five short bands of beads in rows at each side of the pockets. The suit in this picture comes from the shoulders to the knees, straight at the front and a little flaring at the sides and back. In this particular

IMMORAL WAVE BRINGS STRINGENT COURT ORDER

It has long been contended that it is impossible to legislate a man into being good, and while this contention may be true Judge Singleton Bell is evidently of the opinion that you can at least make the average harpie careful by threatening him with the law's dire consequences for his lapse from virtue.

During the past thirty days Judge Bell has had before him for disposition no less than five young lads all under the age of sixteen years, who finally fell into the hands of the law after long persistence in moral delinquency in their home communities. The stories these children have been telling and the names they have been giving has justly excited the indignation of the Court and with a view to breaking up the prevailing practice and place the punishment where it belongs, Judge Bell made the following order yesterday and asks widest publicity for same:

In the Juvenile Branch of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield county, Pennsylvania.

Now, July 21st, 1919, it is ordered that the public officers shall investigate all allegations made of illicit relations with girls coming within the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court and all other girls under the age of 21 years whose cases shall appear to present such circumstances as may require the Court to commit them to an institution, and in all cases where there appears reason to believe that any male upwards of 16 years of age has had illicit relations with any such girl of either of said classes the Probation Officer is directed to lodge an information charging him with rape, seduction, or fornication as the case may be. And it is further ordered that in all cases where such matters are brought to the attention of the Commonwealth or the Court by the local constables that the said constable shall make such investigation and furnish all possible information to the Commonwealth, to the end that such prosecution may be instituted.

By the Court,
SINGLETON BELL, P. J.

Europe's first Chinese newspaper was established in Paris during the war, under the editorship of Mr. Y. C. Yen. It was designed particularly for the benefit of the Chinese labor corps enlisted by the Allies. It sold for one penny and was said to have contained a daily digest of special cable messages from the Orient.

There are fewer daily newspapers in Spain than in any other country of Europe.

CHINESE RIGHTS TO SHANTUNG TO BE RECOGNIZED

WASHINGTON, July 21.—China's right to the continued possession of the Shantung peninsula will be officially recognized by the senate foreign relations committee when the treaty is reported to the senate.

An amendment striking from the treaty the article which attempts to transfer control of Shantung to Japan will be adopted by the committee, it was announced yesterday.

The amendment will receive the votes of ten Republican members of the committee, including Senator McCumber, who favors ratification. The present temper of the senate on the Shantung question would indicate that the amendment would be adopted by the senate also.

China's delegates to the peace conference are here. They held a long conference with Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, to whom they expressed gratification over the strong sentiment which has been developed in the U. S. in favor of China and against the claims asserted by Japan.

It is probable some arrangement may be made for the appearance of the delegation before the entire committee so that the committee may learn how the rights of the Chinese representatives were disregarded at the peace conference. The delegates brought with them a great deal of documentary evidence which will be placed at the disposal of the committee.

A curious idea among the Burmese is that people born on the same day of the week must not marry, and that if they defy the fate, their union will be marked by much ill-luck.

AN OPEN LETTER

To our fellow citizens:

With the approach of the Chautauque season it will occur to many thoughtful people, "What is the unique value of Chautauque this year?"

Last year Chautauque was one of the most powerful of the forces whose part it was to maintain the nation's morale. So successful was it in this task that President Wilson was moved to call Chautauque "an integral part of the national defense."

Great and important as was the service of Chautauque during the war, we believe that its opportunity this year is even greater, and if possible, more important.

Out of the chaos of the great war comes the world of 1919. Many of its former leaders are gone, its old standards are shattered, its economic traditions are upset, and its ideals are plastic.

The architecture for this new order must, in the Reconstruction period, be molded in a new pattern. The great political and moral problems must be solved by a people well grounded and informed on the questions of the day.

The correct solution of these problems can be arrived at in one way and in one way only. These questions must be discussed without partisan or sectarian bias in the various communities of the land.

In no other way can our priceless democracy be preserved.

And Chautauque is the people's university, the one free forum for discussion in America. It creates that community interest which combats individual selfishness. It calls together the people of the community to discuss with the nation's keenest minds the world's biggest problems. It is a steady force for the right kind of progress in this Reconstruction period.

Chautauque is more vital this year than ever before.

TOWER OF LONDON MAY BE RESTING PLACE OF KAISER

NEW YORK, July 20—William Hohenzollern, who set out to overcome the world, is now facing the prospect of imprisonment in the Tower of London, that famous old prison and fortress built in 1078 by William the Conqueror. France does not wish the former Kaiser to be sent to London for imprisonment and trial because she fears he may be treated too kindly there, since he is related to King George. But a glance over the history of London Tower and its roll of distinguished prisoners might dispel that doubt.

The place of banishment called London Tower is really composed of about twenty towers, but takes its name from the large square tower in the center of the group called White Tower. This building is the nucleus of the collection of structures now was built by the Conqueror on the site of an old Roman fortress.

At present the enclosure covers thirteen acres. It is a prison, fortress and place for the king, although the rooms reserved for him are never put to use. Here in the Tower are kept crown jewels, regalia and pieces of armor of different periods. It was used also as an arsenal during the war.

The building known as White Tower is said to have been designated for the Kaiser. White Tower, the erection of which was started by William the Conqueror, was finished twenty years later by his son, William Rufus, who began to build Traitors' Gate and St. Thomas Tower.

Recently opened to the public are the secret dungeons of White Tower places of great historic interest. Their gray walls hold gloomy secrets and tales of horror. In this tower is the cell where Sir Walter Raleigh lived ten years. He was released to go on a South American expedition for the king and being unsuccessful returned only to be beheaded.

These dungeons knew the tortures of Guy Fawkes, convicted of trying to blow up the Houses of Parliament. A small cell connecting two dungeons was his resting place between periods of torture on the rack. This room is fittingly called "Little Ease."

The former Kaiser may possibly pass through Traitors' Gate, where all prisoners sentenced to the Tower for execution or imprisonment were brought in the olden times. Here passed lovely seventeen-year-old Lady Jane Grey, beheaded because she had been used as a tool to keep Mark Tudor off the throne. And here passed Anna Boleyn, beheaded because she could not keep the favor of Henry VIII, her husband.

Others who suffered ignoble deaths in the Tower were Sir Thomas Moore, once a friend of the King; Catherine Howard, Archbishop Cranmer and many others whose names were once noteworthy. Few ever entered the Tower to come out except for execution on Tower Hill.

It is near Traitors' Gate that spies are shot at dawn. During the recently ended war twelve spies were put to death there.

Nearly opposite this gate is the Bloody Tower, which was begun by Edward III, about 1340. This tower was the scene of that tragedy of the death of the two young princes, sons of Edward I, smothered to death by their uncle, Richard, Earl of Gloucester. The princes were the children of his dead brother, and Richard desired their death in order to gain the throne for himself.

Other buildings in the group are Beward Tower, the Middle Tower, St. Thomas Tower, Constable's Tower, Brick Tower, Beauchamp Tower, Eastern Gate Tower, the Martin Tower and Bell Tower. In the old days a moat surrounded the Tower, but this was drained away about seventy years ago.

The Tower is interesting because for centuries dramatic events have been enacted there. Its history of death and torture extended down to the middle of the eighteenth century, when within it the last of the Jacobite leaders was beheaded. Often parties were taken to the Tower to be beheaded by their successful rivals.

A superstition in the Tower is that the ghost of Mary Queen of Scots, whose execution was arranged by Queen Elizabeth, appears immediately before the death of a King or Queen. The ghost is said to have appeared a

Meat Injurious To The Kidneys

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constant on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric acid so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

short time before the death of Victoria.

And here in the White Tower, with its deep dungeons, these eerie places of suffering, William II, former Kaiser, will soon be brought, if report is true.

It is said no one ever met punishment in the Tower without a trial. Those convicted as spies in the late war received trials, and those who fear the Kaiser may not be treated fairly enough have this precedent to claim their fears.

HARDBOILED SMITH CRUEL OFFICER NOW IN PRISON

NEW YORK, July 21—Lieutenant "Hardboiled" Smith, placed under arrest in France after an investigation into charges of brutal treatment of American soldiers at the Chelles farm prison camp, was brought to the United States on the transport Santa Eleasia, and taken today to Fort Jay, on Governors Island.

He was separated from the rest of the 50 prisoners aboard the Santa Eleasia, for they threatened to do him bodily harm, and did do everything possible to make him miserable.

It was reported several days ago Smith had already reached Fort Jay and had there been attacked and badly beaten by other prisoners.

"Hardboiled" Smith is a brute in human form and surrounded himself with a crew equally as bad-hearted. They used "steel knuckles" blackjacks and other weapons on the doughboys, unfortunate enough to fall into their clutches.

It might be interesting to know that the movement which eventually resulted in "Hardboiled" getting his due, was started by a Clearfielder, Col. Frederick B. Kerr, of the Twenty-Third Engineers who it is said, made the first charges against the man following a report from one of his men who suffered at the brute's hands.

One of the loneliest inhabited spots on the globe is Tristan da Cunha, a small and rugged island between Cape Colony and South America. It was occupied by some British artillery in 1817 for the purpose of keeping an additional watch on the island of St. Helena when Napoleon was a prisoner. On his death, in 1821, all the soldiers were withdrawn, except three men who, with some whale hunters, founded the tiny settlement, now numbering about seventy-five people. In this lonely settlement there is neither strong drink nor crime, and the inhabitants are healthy and long-lived. The only regular communication with the outside world is a visit from a warship once a year.

I saw it in The Progress.

HUNS FIGHTING BOLSHEVIKISM BY PROPAGANDA

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN—By Mail—Bolshevism, or as it is called in German, "der Bolschewismus" is being fought with a famous German weapon—propaganda.

Lurid posters decorate Berlin; just as lurid pamphlets and handbills are being sent broadcast by the propagandists who seek to steer Germany clear of the system of the next door neighbor Russia. Some of the anti-bolshevik posters have a tendency to keep one awake nights; they could easily be used to scare recalcitrant children.

The favorite theme in the propagandist poster is an admixture of skulls, clutching skeleton hands, fire, and axes. One poster is of an ugly skeleton, bearing in its mouth a bloody dagger, while in the background is a scaffold. Its sole message to the public reads, "The Danger of Bolshevism." Another calls bolshevism a "sea of blood and an army of graves," while it portrays a crying woman before an expanse of graves, each marked with a humble wooden cross.

Much emphasis is laid on an exposition of the results of bolshevism—"was, unemployment and hunger," and the handbills give a series of figures to show what bolshevism in Russia do and do not eat what sufferings they endure, and so on, ad infinitum. Special appeals are made to protect the "fatherland, the home and the loved ones from bolshevism, which is the death of freedom, order and happiness."

The propagandist does not overlook the oft-repeated story that, in various sections of bolshevized Russia, women are natinized.

The anti-bolshevist fight is being conducted by an organization styling itself, The Union for Fighting Bolshevism. It now has a considerable membership which is understood to include a number of prominent and wealthy Germans.

That there is some fertile soil for bolshevism in Germany is certain; but, the German people do not want so radical an experiment in government or economics, and would be quite content with almost any regime which afforded them an opportunity to get away from unemployment, disorder and discontent. The German is disciplined by long years in the Kaiser school to swing entirely to extremes, especially if he gets more freedom and a chance to live without such an experiment.

Cigars that are sometimes eighteen inches in length are smoked by the natives in the Philippines.

Weird and wonderful are some of the remedies devised in different parts of the world for diseases which afflict suffering humanity. One of the oddest of these is the belief prevalent in many countries of Europe that the passing under the belly of an ass of a child suffering from whooping-cough will bring instant relief.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A jaunt to the country by The Progress man the other day, indicated by inquiry among the farmers that the grain crop in this end of the county will be far ahead of last year. Wheat and rye is well filled and heavy in the stalk; oats will not be the crop that was expected, yet the yield per acre will be about the same as two years ago, and there will be enough of it to supply the demand and feed the stock bountifully; corn is looking good and promises to be a bumper crop; if the buckwheat crop is anywhere what it ought to be, there will be enough of it to furnish every family with cakes all through the winter; the hay crop was good, yet not extraordinary, the dry, hot weather in May stunting the growth. The crop cut and housed on the ordinary farm is nothing to complain of. Taking the crops and other things into consideration, the Clearfield county farmer ought to be able to "lard up" some during the winter and cold weather months.

Mrs. Dorothy Temple left last Saturday for Cresson where she will spend the remainder of the summer months.

A man who was out on the mountains Sunday gave out the information to The Progress representative yesterday that he counted sixty automobiles parked along the by-ways and hedges. He estimates that there were at least five hundred people in the berry region and that the bracken and brush was tramped down to such an extent that the ground looked to him like as though a drove of wild cattle had traversed it. He also stated that the membership of every church in town was represented, and they were not looking for a church either.

Coal men are taking time by the forelock and some of them have advanced the price of coal from 12 to 14 cents per bushel. Last winter some of these same dealers went from house to house and solicited orders for coal delivered at 12 cents. Just why they tacked on the extra 2 cents this season, they can hardly explain themselves, only as one man said, "As everything else is going up in price why not coal?" Now then the buyer should retaliate by demanding that his coal be weighed. The law requires it, but not a great deal of attention has been paid to its enforcement. Those who own or operate country banks are asking 10 cents per bushel at the dump. Will the consumer stand the 2 cents raise?

GOING AFTER CHEAP FOOD

Word had been received by the City Council, from the government, regarding certain army stores which were being sold to municipalities, for the use of their citizens, at prices greatly under prices now prevailing in retail stores. While agreeing that the purchase of a carload or more of these stores would be of considerable benefit to the people, it was believed that the actual obtaining of the car should be done through the Community Association than through the City Council. On motion therefore, the Mayor appointed a committee, consisting of J. M. Grossman, D. E. Hibner, A. H. Broadbent, B. B. McCreight and Miss Nell Elder, to investigate the matter.—DuBois Courier.

NATION NOTABLES. LAUD AND PRAISE LEGION OF HONOR

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, General John J. Pershing, Major-General George Barnett, commanding the United States Marine Corps and Admiral William S. Simms, endorse the American Legion as the national organization of American veterans of the Great War, by cable, telegraph and letter to National Headquarters in New York.

"The effort which is being made to bind together the men who served the country in the Great War," says Secretary Baker, "upon a basis of their common interest in one another, their common service and their common loyalty to the country seems to be commendable from every point of view."

"This organization is so distinctly a spontaneous growth of the mind and heart of the men who have been in the service that it neither desires nor would be benefited by an official relationship to the War Department as a branch of the government but the war department is interested in the soldier and I who have been permitted to maintain through these heroic years a close relationship to the great army naturally have the kindest interest in everything that affects their welfare and the preservation of their great traditions."

"The continued mobilization for patriotic purposes of the Americans who served their country in the grim days of war," declares Secretary Daniels, "will make for the preservation of the principles for which they fought valiantly and victoriously. It would be a distinct loss of the unity of spirit and comradeship for better things should not be crystallized in such organized forces as to make these civic crusaders as invincible for real Americanism in peace as their valour and cheerfulness made them invincible and glorious in war."

General March says: "The aims of The American Legion are of such a high character as to make certain its success and its real value to the country at large. The experiences of this war cannot fail to have had a broadening effect upon every soldier who engaged in it, and the lessons of duty to country and of loyalty to the form of government represented by the United States have been thoroughly learned by the American army. The American Legion aims to perpetuate the memories of a glorious page of our history and its non-partisan character assures its long life and prosperity."

Admiral Sims states in his message: "I hope that it will always stand for that which the American Army and Navy have fought for, and as the Army and Navy always upheld the highest traditions, so may the American Legion serve to assist us in upholding those traditions."

General Pershing says in a cable to the Legion: "It gives me much pleasure to extend to the American Legion my hearty good wishes for success of the society of veterans of the Great War. The Legion is destined to be of tremendous value in fostering the ideals and purposes for which we fought, and in spreading among our people the lessons learned in the war. I predict a most useful future for the Legion."

Major-General Barnett says: "I am proud of my membership in the American Legion, and as the recognized national organization of American veterans of the war, it has before it a great future, a future which promises loyal and useful service to America and Americans."

DONALD M. CALL, Second Lieutenant, Company F, Tank Corps

Lieut. Call was decorated for conspicuous bravery in action near Varennes, France, September 28, 1918. During an operation against enemy machine gun nests west of Varennes, Lieut. Call, then corporal, was in a tank with an officer, when half of the turret was knocked off by a direct artillery hit. Choked by gas from the high explosive shell, he left the tank and took cover in a shell hole thirty yards away. Seeing that the officer did not follow, and thinking that he might be alive, Corp. Call returned to the tank under intense machine gun and shell fire and carried the officer over a mile under machine gun and sniper fire to safety. Lieut. Call's home is at Larchmont Manor, N. Y.

CALIFORNIA TRYS CABINET FORM OF STATE GOVERNMENT

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 22.—California began an experiment in the cabinet form of state government today. The department of agriculture was established to control all state governmental activities of an agricultural nature.

State Horticultural Commissioner G. H. Hecke has been selected by Gov. Stephens as cabinet officer to head the new department. If the trial proves satisfactory bills will be introduced before the next legislature for a complete cabinet system of state government, with 12 departments in addition to a division of finance, to control all governmental functions.

A bill providing for the department of agriculture was passed by the legislature this spring. All laws passed during the session, except emergency measures, became effective today.

A law giving the wife equal rights with the husband in testamentary disposition of community property, among those becoming effective today, is to be fought in the courts, to test its constitutionality.

It calls for a division of the community property, unless otherwise disposed of in the will, and requires consent of both husband and wife for the testamentary disposition.

State aid for orphans is greatly increased beginning today. Orphans and half orphans will now receive $10 per month, where half orphans formerly got $6.25 and whole orphans $8.33.

State elementary school appropriations are also greatly increased; the rate being raised from $550 to $300 per teacher.

A state industrial farm for delinquent women is authorized, and $150,000 appropriated to found it.

A few years ago some unoriginal person evolved from his inner consciousness or otherwise a collection of automobile advice which he christened "Motoring's Ten Commandments." The idea was an old one, yet the thing went well with the country editors, wherefore it had quite a vogue for a while. If the genius responsible for this brilliant idea still be alive and shining, I would like to suggest to him the addition of an eleventh commandment, so as to bring his decalogue up to the minute or rather the Sabbath day, says a writer in American Motorist. My suggestion would be something like this: "Thou shalt not use thy gasoline, nor thy neighbor's gasoline, but thou canst spend the Sabbath day cleaning out the carbon in thy cylinders, adjusting thy carburetor to the heaviest mixture ever, and thou mayst tinker with the old wagon so thou canst beat it over the hills on the morrow. Selah!"

It is said that a movement is on foot in Germany to save the ex-kaiser from being handed over to the allies. But if the British have made up their minds to get him, they will stick to their determination with the national bulldog tenacity until, like Napoleon, he is in their hands, says Baltimore American. He is too dangerous a force to be allowed at large, for any grace permitted him will be the instant signal for fresh intrigues to restore him to the throne.

Appropos of the appeal to the courts of the undesirables sentenced to deportation, no one of them has ever explained why in denouncing law and order, their first act, when faced with the consequences of the denunciation, is to ask the law to protect them in the very rights they have denounced.

Our opinion of a lack of thought conservation is for a man with a street car salary to spend his time studying catalogues trying to decide which automobile he would buy if he should unexpectedly come into possession of a fortune.

PRESIDENT RESUMES CONFERENCES WITH SENATORS ON THE LEAGUE House Finally Approves Enforcement Legislation For National Dry Laws

FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE DENIES WILSON RIGHT TO SEND REPARATION AGENT ABROAD

McNARY TO FOLLOW PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 22—Developments in the League of Nations fight today were as follows:

First. President Wilson resumed his efforts to convert the Republican senators who oppose the league or who are undecided in their course.

Second. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee refused to grant the President's request that he be permitted to name an American representative on the Allied Reparation Committee before the signing of the treaty. It was pointed out that had the President gained what he wanted the United States would have to Paris a man who would be carrying out the provisions of the treaty without our first having ratified the treaty. Accession to the request of the President would have compromised the position of this nation on this matter.

Third. Debate on the league was resumed in the Senate.

That Wilson considers his conferences with the Republican senators of the utmost importance was indicated today from the fact that he left his sick bed to see callers. The rebuff given him by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is regarded as significant.

Senator McNary of Oregon, today stated flatly that he would oppose any effort to strike Article Ten from the treaty and served notice on his Republican colleagues that he was in favor of only such reservations as were of a purely explanatory character. McNary has seen the President and evidently the President was able to make an impression on him.

WASHINGTON, July 22—Saying that Germany would not become a member of the league of nations for fifty years, Senator Johnson of South Dakota today made a speech in favor of the covenant. Johnson advocated the changing of Article 8 of the covenant in such a manner as would prohibit the manufacture of poison gas and high explosive materials.

HOUSE BEGINS THOROUGH PROBE OF MEXICAN SITUATION IN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, July 22—The House began today a complete investigation of the Mexican situation. The program as outlined by Representative Mondell, leader of the Republicans, will be to form a definite line towards Mexico. Ambassador Fletcher will be the first witness heard. The preliminary hearing will be before the Rules Committee after which a special committee will go into the matter.

Ambassador Fletcher declared to the House Rules Committee that at least fifty-one Americans have been murdered in Mexico during the last two years and that in no instance does he have any knowledge of a prosecution and punishment. In some instance arrests were made but no notification of punishment was ever made to him, he said.

"Is Carranza fulfilling his mission as a government?" he was asked by Representative Cambell. "I think he is," said Fletcher. "Apparently he is making an effort to maintain friendly relations with the United States."

GREAT BRITAIN APPROVES TREATY

LONDON, July 21—Great Britain today placed the seal of its approval on the peace treaty and League of Nations. The vote taken in the House of Commons resulted in the affirmative 163 to 4. An attempt to defeat the treaty and league by injection of the Irish problem was voted down decisively.

FLAMING BALLOON DROPS ON BANK KILLING ELEVEN

CHICAGO, ILL., July 22.—The death toll of the Chicago aeronautical accident was increased to twelve today with the death of Harry Norton, a photographer for a newspaper who was in the "blimp". Norton leaped to the ground in a parachute, landing heavily. His last and only words were, "Where are my plates?" He dropped in LaSalle street, the "Wall street" of Chicago. It developed that the city corner was a witness to the accident. The coroner is conducting an investigation.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Nine employees of the Illinois Savings and Trust Company and two members of the crew of the Goodyear Rubber Company dirigible "Wingfoot" were dead today—victims of the flying terror.

While two hundred clerks toiled at their ledgers and journals closing up the business of the day and messengers scurried to and fro to the hum of high business pressure a shadow passed over the skylight through which the banking room received its light—a darkening shadow—a smoke cloud—then a crash and the body of a man was hurled through the skylight, closely followed by a shapeless mass of twisted steel and heavy machinery. With the descent of the death-dealing metal there came blinding flames which began to lick up spread over the banking rooms like a blanket. Men and women glanced upward from the floors and from the galleries—screamed and with the sight of flaming rivulets of gasoline hysteria broke loose. The frightened screams of the women rose above the men. The men succeeded in liberating seventeen girls through the gallery windows. The banking room was transformed in an instant from a scene of quiet to a seething furnace. Evelyn Myers, telephone operator, was the first to die. She was operating her switchboard when the shadow hovered over the room and a cylinder of gas lit on her table. A witness in describing the scene said, "there was a sizzle like that of a gigantic frying pan". After that smoke and gas obscured the scene. Many of the victims could not be identified except through their clothing which remained in the cloak rooms. No rescue could be effected until the firemen had subdued the flames with chemicals. Many when rescued were entirely de-

COUNTY NATIONAL BANK IMPROVEMENT

Contractor Ashley Rishell has been chosen to make the addition to the County National bank, the contract for this work having been let very recently.

The plan contemplates the utilization of the A. J. Hagerty store room which property was purchased by the bank several months ago.

The contemplated improvement will cost anywhere from $35,000 to $40,000 and when completed the County National will have the largest, most conveniently arranged and finely appointed bank building in this section of Pennsylvania.

PHYSICAL CONDITION OF WILSON IMPROVES

WASHINGTON — Discussing the health of the president today Dr. Grayson, his personal physician stated that 'the president is getting along as well as can be expected. He is weak however as weather conditions are unfavorable to the fight against the disease. He is responding to treatment though and we believe he will fully recover speedily.' Whether the president's health will have any effect on his plans for a speaking tour of the nation is not known.

FRED THOMPSON BOUGHT WINDSOR HOTEL PROPERTY

Fred J. Thompson, who recently disposed of his interest in the Clearfield Electric Supply Company and Clearfield Auto Supply Company, has purchased the Windsor Hotel property from James Mahaffey and expects to take possession of same about the first of August.

It is Mr. Thompson's intention to convert the building into a business block. With this end in view the main floor will be lowered to the street level and two fine store rooms made fronting on Market street. A store room fronting on Third street will also be provided, it being the purpose to extend the present kitchen out to Third street.

Handsome late style store fronts will be added on both the Market and Third street sides and the building made one of our handsomest business blocks.

The stairway to the second floor will be changed around and entrance to same will be made from Third street. The second and third floors of the building will be utilized as a rooming house and the forty rooms newly fitted up for the accommodation of lodgers.

The present sample room and garage on the rear of the lot at the alley will also be converted into a store room which will add greatly to Third street's importance as a business street.

The improvement to the property will cost approximately $15,000, which will make Mr. Thompson a $60,000 investment. The new owner has already had many applications for new business places but as he has not fully decided what offers to accept for his rooms we are unable to state at this time just what lines will be represented in the new stores.

OLD BUCKTAIL IN TOWN

Comrade Joseph Henry of Bell township, was a Clearfield visitor today, and attracted quite a bit of attention as he marched up street with a bucktail stuck in his hat. Comrade Henry was a member of Company K of Kane's First Rifles, and one of that aggregation of Pennsylvania mountaineers whose glorious deeds embellish the pages of history of the war of the rebellion. The ancient badge of courage attracted the few remaining old vets to Comrade Henry's side and the many hard campaigns of the days of '61 to '65 were talked over for some time before he left for home.

WASHINGTON, July 22—The House of Representatives today gave its final approval to national prohibition when it passed a measure providing for enforcement of both war time and federal prohibition. The bill passed after a final effort was made to recommit the bill and substitute a much more liberal measure introduced by Representative Igoe of Missouri. The vote on the recommitment was 136 to 265. The final vote on the prohibition enforcement measure was 287 for, 101 against and three voting present.

RACE RIOTS IN WASHINGTON ARE CONTINUING

A resolution asking the President to proclaim martial law for the District of Columbia because of the continued rioting between whites and blacks was introduced in the House this afternoon by Representative Emerson of Ohio.

WASHINGTON, July 22—Additional troops will be rushed to Washington today in an effort to control the rioting which has continued for three nights. Up to this time there have been four killed, two seriously injured and more than thirty wounded in the fighting. Four hundred soldiers and marines have reinforced the regular capital police force of 700 men but this force has been found unable thus far to cope with the situation. While putting down disturbances in one place outbreaks occur in other sections of the city. The negroes under armed guard, the whites, appear to have obtained the best of the situation in the early hours of the rioting. This morning the principal avenues of the city were full of automobiles containing negroes who shouted to the whites "come on."

Daylight and a terrific thunder storm put an end to the hostilities of the night but there is a fear that the fighting will be resumed tonight. Major Pullman, head of the capital police conferred with the military authorities today and as a result of this conference it is expected that by tonight the city will be a virtual armed camp. Two hundred arrests have been made.

This morning a mob of one hundred negroes marched in procession towards the white residential district but a posse of police and soldiers dispersed them. The whites also tried to gain admittance to the black quarters of the city today when over a thousand marched past the White House enroute for the black belt. A cordon of police and soldiers succeeded in holding them back. At a late hour this morning a negro fired a shot from a fast moving street car while another shot a cavalry from ambush. Sergeant Murphy, a marine, was shot through the jaw while standing on duty at a corner in the negro district. His assailant attacked him.

At a meeting of the merchants of DuBois held yesterday morning in the Community Association rooms it was decided to hold the semi-annual Dollar Day on August 7th. Great enthusiasm prevailed among the merchants and the talk was all to the effect that Dollar Day this summer would be the biggest event ever held. The merchants have done an unusual good business during the past season and the practical wind-up of the summer selling will find them with many odds and ends that they will place on sale on this date. It has always been the disturbance earlier in the evening. As the police battered down the door a shot was fired. Detective Wilson in the lead, collapsed, with a bullet in his breast. Braving further fire, the other detectives rushed in. At the end of the narrow hall they found the groveling negroes who had fired the shot. The pistol was still in her hand. Wilson died a few minutes later.

The disturbances are the outgrowth of the high feeling against negroes caused by the recent attacks that have been made on white women in Washington. At midnight the capital of the nation was practically an armed camp. Police and soldiers on foot and horses

PHILADELPHIA, July 22.—Ralph Moyer, cashier of the North Penn Bank, was arraigned in the municipal police court here this afternoon charged on six counts with crimes in connection with the closing of the bank. He was held in $25,000 bail for a further hearing on Thursday.

HARRISBURG, July 21—Ralph P. Moyer, cashier of the North Penn bank, of Philadelphia, which was suspended two days ago by the state commissioner, confessed that the shortage of the bank would approximate $900,000. His confession was made to James W. McBurney, the special receiver in charge of the affairs of the institution.

Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher gives out this information tonight, which he said, was received by him from McBurney over the telephone.

Commissioner Fisher, immediately upon receipt of the information, ordered Moyer's arrest. The cashier faces the possible charges of perjury, embezzlement, misapplication of funds, rehypothecation of securities, mutilating records of a bank and receiving deposits when it was known to him that the bank was insolvent. The frauds, according to the information, has been going on for two years. The state bank examiners were unable to detect them because, according to Moyer's confession, loose leaves were substituted by him in the ledger when the examiner came around. The substitutes did not disclose any discrepancy.

Deputy Commissioner Cameron said that Moyer told him yesterday that only $50 stood between his family and starvation. At that time Mr. Cameron advised him to tell the truth as the officials would be certain to find it out. Today, Moyer went to the bank, broke down and confessed to McBurney.

Commissioner Fisher made it plain that anyone who obtained money illegally from the bank would be forced to make restitution.

DUBOIS DOLLAR DAY TO BE HELD ON AUGUST SEVENTH

At a meeting of the merchants of DuBois held yesterday morning in the Community Association rooms it was decided to hold the semi-annual Dollar Day on August 7th. Great enthusiasm prevailed among the merchants and the talk was all to the effect that Dollar Day this summer would be the biggest event ever held. The merchants have done an unusual good business during the past season and the practical wind-up of the summer selling will find them with many odds and ends that they will place on sale on this date. It has always been the disturbance earlier in the evening. As the police battered down the door a shot was fired. Detective Wilson in the lead, collapsed, with a bullet in his breast. Braving further fire, the other detectives rushed in. At the end of the narrow hall they found the groveling negroes who had fired the shot. The pistol was still in her hand. Wilson died a few minutes later.

The disturbances are the outgrowth of the high feeling against negroes caused by the recent attacks that have been made on white women in Washington. At midnight the capital of the nation was practically an armed camp. Police and soldiers on foot and horses

It has long been evident that some drastic action be taken to curb the prevalent immorality among juveniles in this county. Each session of court has seen an increase in this class of crime and particularly in those cases wherein adults were contributors of the delinquency of young girls. This is not an occasion for prudishness but calls for the united support of every citizen. The quicker we face the facts and remedy the evils the better for our community. Making ourselves believe that the situation is not bad and dismissing the action of the Court as a mere formality is Pharisical.

We are inclined to think that laxity on the part of police officials both in the borough of Clearfield and in the county at large is responsible to a large degree for prevailing conditions. The streets of Clearfield will stand some cleaning up not of the brush and water variety.

WHAT A CENT WOULD DO

An increase in railroad freight rates is so generally accepted by dealers as an excuse for increasing the price of commodities subject to the higher rates that some remarks on this text by Chairman Julius Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific system deserve attention. Pointing out in his annual report that the popular impression of this relation of higher rates to living costs is "grossly exaggerated," Mr. Kruttschnitt says:

No coin is small enough to represent any of these increases in cost, but if the dealer should add one copper cent in each case to the 1910 prices to reimburse him for the increased cost of his commodity due to increased freight rates he would grossly overcharge the purchaser in every case. He would make him pay nearly double the proper amount in the case of a pair of shoes and over six times the proper amount in the case of a pound of ham or bacon.

The statement makes an interesting contribution to the education which consumers are nowadays receiving in the matter of "fronting." Certainly railroad and other corporations have sins enough to answer for on this score. But when the account is finally balanced the plain everyday American may discover that he is the victim less of oppression higher up than of extortion lower down and on his own level.

WOULDN'T HEAR TO "FOURTEEN POINTS"

Not even the far-famed Balm of Gilead would be sufficient to save the lacerated feelings of the few "tight wads" on the list of this year's Chautauqua guarantors, were one to judge of the extent of said lacerations from the volume of the wails set up by these aforesaid parsimonious ones at the scheduled early morning meeting held for the purpose of circumventing Mayor Chase's Public Safety Department's threatened $2000 fines.

It was some meeting. Everybody kicked but "Jeff" Weaver. He couldn't kick as one of his ankles is broken and he needed the other to stand on, and as a fellow couldn't kick very hard sitting down anyhow, "Jeff" was made chairman of the meeting.

Sixty-three witnesses were examined but not a single clue as to the taker of the signs was gleaned and oceans of gloom settled down over, around and about the assemblage.

An effort was made to compromise with the authorities but the Mayor refused to treat. The reasons advanced for a compromise or arbitration thru an unfortunate circumstance numbered just fourteen and it is thought that the figures may have had something to do with it. The Mayor is not impressed by fourteen points, he says he has all the trouble he wants observing the ten commandments.

The theory advanced by some of the fearful was that the Hyde City Nick Carter had struck "pay dirt" and was close upon the trail of the sign-tacking law violator. However, be that as it may, the law breaker refuses to come to the front and end the agony.

Meanwhile the Chautauqua proposes to keep right on a coming and will be here July 29th to Aug. 4 if they have to sue out an injunction restraining the local and Hyde City man hunters from interfering with their entertainment. Look at the program for the week and you'll not blame them for wanting to give it here.

They have a curious way of taking the census in China, where the enumeration of the inhabitants is an annual affair. The oldest master of every ten houses is required to count the families and make a list, which is sent to the imperial tax officers.

NEW BELL BOOKS OUT

The telephone books are being distributed by the Bell Telephone Company in Clearfield and vicinity.

A new feature is the list of fire wardens in the county named. The value of this information may readily be appreciated, as it gives everyone an opportunity to be of benefit to his community in the event of forest fires occurring in his vicinity. Reference to the list of wardens is a simple matter and prompt action on the part of the person who discovers the fire will doubtless result in the saving of thousands of dollars of valuable forest lands and probably lives as well.

H. M. Peck, local manager of the Company, tells us that many new subscribers have been added to their lists and recommends that all subscribers consult the new directory before making calls, as there has been a large number of changes.

It is a singular fact that, while hares are excellent swimmers, rabbits cannot swim.

"BULL MOOSE" PLAN

CONFERENCE JULY 29

HARRISBURG, July 20.—With the avowed purpose of opening a campaign for the election of delegates to the next Republican national convention who will favor a candidate embodying the policies and ideals of Theodore Roosevelt and of starting a national movement to this end, a conference of Pennsylvania "Bull Moose" has been called here on July 29. The conference is the result of a small conference held in Philadelphia in June, over which Gifford Pinchot presided.

The call for the Harrisburg conference is signed by: Gifford Pinchot, Pike county; William Flinn, Allegheny county; M. Clyde Kelly, Allegheny county; Lex N. Mitchell, Jefferson county; George F. Holmes, Philadelphia; Major I. B. Brown, Erie county; Allen W. Hagenbach, Lehigh county; Robert C. Bair, York county; Thomas A. H. Hay, Northampton county; J. V. Clark, Washington county; W. Lovell Baldrige, Blair county; Robert F. Rich, Clinton county.

Mr. Pinchot announced that progressive Republican senators and congressmen in Washington know of the Pennsylvania conference, are in vigorous sympathy with it, and that Senator Miles Poindexter of the state of Washington, would be in Harrisburg to address the conference.

NOT SOURED

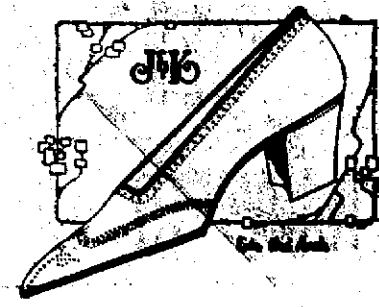

"So you lost your case in court, Mr. Gloom?" said an acquaintance.

"Yes," replied J. Fuller Gloom. "And still I am not soured by it; I do not think all lawyers are dishonest. Lincoln was a lawyer, and he was honest. Rufus Choate was honest. Probably some of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were lawyers and honest. And I know the names of several other lawyers, also dead, who were honest."

Designed for Youthful Wearers

It takes considerable imagination to suit a deep cape collar replaces the quite grown up for those who are not grown up. But a smaller collar would not half so stylish. It is a new idea, to express youth by having the cut and finish of garments just enough to take them out of the young woman class and place them in the young girl category. Generally, in suits, this is accomplished by making roots, vees, to be in and simple as to line and by following current fashion as becomes youth at a distance. The two suits presented in the picture are examples of good designing to meet the needs of the ages from fourteen to sixteen, and they are recommended for young women who affect youthful styles, providing their figures are girlish enough to suit these models.

Jersey cloth suits of any of the standard stripes will make the smart suit shown at the left of the picture successfully, but the finer weaves appear to be the best choice for misses' suits. This one is of beige colored serge trimmed with rows of narrow silk braid to match and insets of navy blue tulle. The skirt is noticeably wider than those in vogue for older women and is gathered in at the waistline. Five short bands of braid in rows at each side of the pockets. The suit in this picture comes from the shoulders to the knees, straight at the front and a little flaring at the sides and back. In this particular

Fabrics for Draping.

As plans for the fall season mature, the dress goods houses are finding that the style of material, giving the best draping effect is the type nastily named "soft finished goods on the yellowed side." Soft finished goods on the yellowed side attract the buyers' attention over the hard finished stiffer material. Fabrics also approaching the velvet order, it is said, will find the most popular sale. Thus will be particularly true of cloakings, and applies to the cloth to be used in suits.

IMMORAL WAVE BRINGS STRINGENT COURT ORDER

It has long been contended that it is impossible to legislate a man into being good, and while this contention may be true Judge Singleton Bell is evidently of the opinion that you can at least make the average harpie careful by threatening him with the law's dire consequences for his lapse from virtue.

During the past thirty days Judge Bell has had before him for disposition no less than five young girls all under the age of sixteen years, who finally fell into the hands of the law after long persistence in moral delinquency in their home communities. The stories these children have been telling and the names they have been giving has justly excited the indignation of the Court and with a view to breaking up the prevailing practice and place the punishment where it belongs, Judge Bell made the following order yesterday and asks widest publicity for same:

In the Juvenile Branch of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield county, Pennsylvania.

Now, July 21st, 1919, it is ordered that the public officers shall investigate all allegations made of illicit relations with girls coming within the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court and all other girls under the age of 21 years whose cases shall appear to present such circumstances as may require the Court to commit them to an institution, and in all cases where there appears reason to believe that any male upwards of 16 years of age has had illicit relations with any such girl of either of said classes the Probation Officer is directed to lodge an information charging him with rape, seduction, or fornication as the case may be. And it is further ordered that in all cases where such matters are brought to the attention of the Commonwealth or the Court by the local constables that the said constable shall make such investigation and furnish all possible information to the Commonwealth, to the end that such prosecution may be instituted.

By the Court,
SINGLETON BELL, P. J.

CHINESE RIGHTS TO SHANTUNG TO BE RECOGNIZED

WASHINGTON, July 21.—China's right to the continued possession of the Shantung peninsula will be officially recognized by the senate foreign relations committee when the treaty is reported to the senate.

An amendment striking from the treaty the article which attempts to transfer control of Shantung to Japan will be adopted by the committee, it was announced yesterday.

The amendment will receive the votes of ten Republican members of the committee, including Senator McCumber, who favors ratification. The present temper of the senate on the Shantung question would indicate that the amendment would be adopted by the senate also.

China's delegates to the peace conference are here. They held a long conference with Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, to whom they expressed gratification over the strong sentiment which has been developed in the U. S. in favor of China and against the claims asserted by Japan.

It is probable some arrangement may be made for the appearance of the delegation before the entire committee so that the committee may learn how the rights of the Chinese representatives were disregarded at the peace conference. The delegates brought with them a great deal of documentary evidence which will be placed at the disposal of the committee.

A curious idea among the Burmese is that people born on the same day of the week must not marry, and that if they defy the fate, their union will be marked by much ill-luck.

AN OPEN LETTER

To our fellow citizens:

With the approach of the Chautauque season it will occur to many thoughtful people, "What is the unique value of Chautauque this year?"

Last year Chautauque was one of the most powerful of the forces whose part it was to maintain the nation's morale. So successful was it in this task that President Wilson was moved to call Chautauque "an integral part of the national defense."

Great and important as was the service of Chautauque during the war, we believe that its opportunity this year is even greater, and if possible, more important.

Out of the chaos of the great war comes the world of 1919. Many of its former leaders are gone, its old standards are shattered, its economic traditions are upset, and its ideals are plastic.

The architecture for this new order must, in the Reconstruction period, be molded in a new pattern. The great political and moral problems must be solved by a people well grounded and informed on the questions of the day.

The correct solution of these problems can be arrived at in one way and in one way only. These questions must be discussed without partisan or sectarian bias in the various communities of the land.

In no other way can our priceless democracy be preserved.

And Chautauque is the people's university, the one free forum for discussion in America. It creates that community interest which combats individual selfishness. It calls together the people of the community to discuss with the nation's keenest minds the world's biggest problems. It is a steady force for the right and progress in this Reconstruction period.

Chautauque is more vital this year than ever before.

TOWER OF LONDON MAY BE RESTING PLACE OF KAISER

NEW YORK, July 20—William Hohenzollern, who set out to overcome the world, is now facing the prospect of imprisonment in the Tower of London, that famous old prison and fortress built in 1078 by William the Conqueror. France does not wish the former Kaiser to be sent to London for imprisonment and trial because she fears he may be treated too kindly there, since he is related to King George. But a glance over the history of London Tower and its roll of distinguished prisoners might dispel that doubt.

The place of banishment called London Tower is really composed of about twenty towers, but takes its name from the large square tower in the center of the group called White Tower. This building is the nucleus of the collection of structures now was built by the Conqueror on the site of an old Roman fortress.

At present the enclosure covers thirteen acres. It is a prison, fortress and place for the king, although the rooms reserved for him are never put to use. Here in the Tower are kept crown jewels, regalia and pieces of armor of different periods. It was used also as an arsenal during the war.

The building known as White Tower is said to have been designated for the Kaiser. White Tower, the erection of which was started by William the Conqueror, was finished twenty years later by his son, William Rufus, who began to build Traitors' Gate and St. Thomas Tower.

Recently opened to the public are the secret dungeons of White Tower places of great historic interest. Their gray walls hold gloomy secrets and tales of horror. In this tower is the cell where Sir Walter Raleigh lived ten years. He was released to go on a South American expedition for the king and being unsuccessful returned only to be beheaded.

These dungeons knew the tortures of Guy Fawkes, convicted of trying to blow up the Houses of Parliament. A small cell connecting two dungeons was his resting place between periods of torture on the rack. This room is fittingly called "Little Ease."

The former Kaiser may possibly pass through Traitors' Gate, where all prisoners sentenced to the Tower for execution or imprisonment were brought in the olden times. Here passed lovely seventeen-year-old Lady Jane Grey, beheaded because she had been used as a tool to keep Mark Tudor off the throne. And here passed Anna Boleyn, beheaded because she could not keep the favor of Henry VIII, her husband.

Others who suffered ignoble deaths in the Tower were Sir Thomas Moore, once a friend of the King; Catherine Howard, Archbishop Cranmer and many others whose names were once noteworthy. Few ever entered the Tower to come out except for execution on Tower Hill.

It is near Traitors' Gate that spies are shot at dawn. During the recently ended war twelve spies were put to death there.

Nearly opposite this gate is the Bloody Tower, which was begun by Edward III, about 1340. This tower was the scene of that tragedy of the death of the two young princes, sons of Edward I, smothered to death by their uncle, Richard, Earl of Gloucester. The princes were the children of his dead brother, and Richard desired their death in order to gain the throne for himself.

Other buildings in the group are Byward Tower, the Middle Tower, St. Thomas Tower, Constable's Tower, Brick Tower, Beauchamp Tower, Eastern Gate Tower, the Martin Tower and Bell Tower. In the old days a moat surrounded the Tower, but this was drained away about seventy years ago.

The Tower is interesting because for centuries dramatic events have been enacted there. Its history of death and torture extended down to the middle of the eighteenth century, when within it the last of the Jacobite leaders was beheaded. Often parties were taken to the Tower to be beheaded by their successful rivals.

A superstition in the Tower is that the ghost of Mary Queen of Scots, whose execution was arranged by Queen Elizabeth, appears immediately before the death of a King or Queen. The ghost is said to have appeared a

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

LLOYD M. SEIBERT,
Sergeant, Company F, 364th
Infantry.

Sergeant Seibert was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Epinonville, France, September 26, 1918. Suffering from illness, Sergeant Seibert remained with his platoon and led his men with the highest courage and leadership under heavy shell and machine gun fire. With two other soldiers Seibert charged a machine gun emplacement in advance of their company, he himself killing one of the enemy with a shotgun, and capturing two others. In this encounter he was wounded, but he nevertheless continued in action, and when a withdrawal was ordered he returned with the last unit, assisting a wounded comrade. Later in the evening he volunteered and carried in wounded until he fainted from exhaustion. His father, George Seibert, lives in Phillipsburg, Pa.

Meat Injurious To The Kidneys

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constant on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

short time before the death of Victoria. And here in the White Tower, with its deep dungeons, these eerie places of suffering, William II, former Kaiser, will soon be brought, if report is true.

It is said no one ever met punishment in the Tower without a trial. Those convicted as spies in the late war received trials, and those who fear the Kaiser may not be treated fairly enough have this precedent to calm their fears.

HARDBOILED SMITH CRUEL OFFICER NOW IN PRISON

NEW YORK, July 21—Lieutenant "Hardboiled" Smith, placed under arrest in France after an investigation into charges of brutal treatment of American soldiers at the Chelles farm prison camp, was brought to the United States on the transport Santa Eleasia, and taken today to Fort Jay, on Governors Island.

He was separated from the rest of the 50 prisoners aboard the Santa Eleasia, for they threatened to do him bodily harm, and did do everything possible to make him miserable.

It was reported several days ago Smith had already reached Fort Jay and had there been attacked and badly beaten by other prisoners.

"Hardboiled" Smith is a brute in human form and surrounded himself with a crew equally as bad-hearted. They used "steel knuckles" blackjacks and other weapons on the doughboys, unfortunate enough to fall into their clutches.

It might be interesting to know that the movement which eventually resulted in "Hardboiled" getting his due, was started by a Clearfielder, Col. Frederick B. Kerr, of the Twenty-Third Engineers who it is said, made the first charges against the man following a report from one of his men who suffered at the brute's hands.

One of the loneliest inhabited spots on the globe is Tristan da Cunha, a small and rugged island between Cape Colony and South America. It was occupied by some British artillery in 1817 for the purpose of keeping an additional watch on the island of St. Helena when Napoleon was a prisoner. On his death, in 1821, all the soldiers were withdrawn, except three men who, with some whale hunters, founded the tiny settlement, now numbering about seventy-five people. In this lonely settlement there is neither strong drink nor crime, and the inhabitants are healthy and long-lived. The only regular communication with the outside world is a visit from a warship once a year.

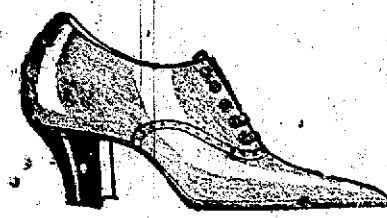

I saw it in The Progress.

HUNS FIGHTING BOLSHEVIKISM BY PROPAGANDA

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN—By Mail—Bolshevism, or as it is called in German, "der Bolshewismus" is being fought with a famous German weapon—propaganda.

Lurid posters decorate Berlin; just as lurid pamphlets and handbills are being sent broadcast by the propagandists who seek to steer Germany clear of the system of the next door neighbor Russia. Some of the anti-bolshevik posters have a tendency to keep one awake nights; they could easily be used to scare recalcitrant children.

The favorite theme in the propagandist poster is an admixture of skulls, clutching skeleton hands, fire, and axes. One poster is of an ugly skeleton, bearing in its mouth a bloody dagger, while in the background is a scaffold. Its sole message to the public reads, "The Danger of Bolshevism." Another calls bolshevism a "sea of blood and an army of graves," while it portrays a crying woman before an expanse of graves, each marked with a humble wooden cross.

Much emphasis is laid on an exposition of the results of bolshevism—"was, unemployment and hunger," and the handbills give a series of figures to show what bolshevism in Russia do and do not eat what sufferings they endure, and so on, ad infinitum. Special appeals are made to protect the "fatherland, the home and the loved ones from bolshevism, which is the death of freedom, order and happiness."

The propagandist does not overlook the oft-repeated story that, in various sections of bolshevized Russia, women are muzzled.

The anti-bolshevist fight is being conducted by an organization styling itself, The Union for Fighting Bolshevism. It now has a considerable membership which is understood to include a number of prominent and wealthy Germans.

That there is some fertile soil for bolshevism in Germany is certain; but, the German people do not want so radical an experiment in government or economics, and would be quite content with almost any regime which afforded them an opportunity to get away from unemployment, disorder and discontent. The German is disciplined by long years in the Kaiser school to swing entirely to extremes, especially if he gets more freedom and a chance to live without such an experiment.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A jaunt to the country by The Progress man the other day, indicated by inquiry among the farmers that the grain crop in this end of the county will be far ahead of last year. Wheat and rye is well filled and heavy in the stalk; oats will not be the crop that was expected, yet the yield per acre will be about the same as two years ago, and there will be enough of it to supply the demand and feed the stock bountifully; corn is looking good and promises to be a bumper crop; if the buckwheat crop is anywhere what it ought to be, there will be enough of it to furnish every family with cakes all through the winter; the hay crop was good, yet not extraordinary, the dry, hot weather in May stunting the growth. The crop cut and housed on the ordinary farm is nothing to complain of. Taking the crops and other things into consideration, the Clearfield county farmer ought to be able to "lard up" some during the winter and cold weather months.

Mrs. Dorothy Temple left last Saturday for Cresson where she will spend the remainder of the summer months.

A man who was out on the mountains Sunday gave out the information to The Progress representative yesterday that he counted sixty automobiles parked along the by-ways and hedges. He estimates that there were at least five hundred people in the berry region and that the bracken and brush was tramped down to such an extent that the ground looked to him like as though a drove of wild cattle had traversed it. He also stated that the membership of every church in town was represented, and they were not looking for a church either.

Coal men are taking time by the forelock and some of them have advanced the price of coal from 12 to 14 cents per bushel. Last winter some of these same dealers went from house to house and solicited orders for coal delivered at 12 cents. Just why they tacked on the extra 2 cents this season, they can hardly explain themselves, only as one man said, "As everything else is going up in price why not coal?" Now then the buyer should retaliate by demanding that his coal be weighed. The law requires it, but not a great deal of attention has been paid to its enforcement. Those who own or operate country banks are asking 10 cents per bushel at the dump. Will the consumer stand the 2 cents raise?

GOING AFTER CHEAP FOOD

Word had been received by the City Council, from the government, regarding certain army stores which were being sold to municipalities, for the use of their citizens, at prices greatly under prices now prevailing in retail stores. While agreeing that the purchase of a carload or more of these stores would be of considerable benefit to the people, it was believed that the actual obtaining of the car should be done through the Community Association than through the City Council. On motion therefore, the Mayor appointed a committee, consisting of J. M. Grossman, D. E. Hibner, A. H. Broadbent, B. B. McCreight and Miss Nell Elder, to investigate the matter.—DuBois Courier.

"CHICKEN SALAD"

NATION NOTABLES. LAUD AND PRAISE LEGION OF HONOR

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, General John J. Pershing, Major-General George Barnett, commanding the United States Marine Corps and Admiral William S. Simms, endorse the American Legion as the national organization of American veterans of the Great War, by cable, telegraph and letter to National Headquarters in New York.

"The effort which is being made to bind together the men who served the country in the Great War," says Secretary Baker, "upon a basis of their common interest in one another, their common service and their common loyalty to the country seems to be commendable from every point of view."

"This organization is so distinctly a spontaneous growth of the mind and heart of the men who have been in the service that it neither desires nor would be benefited by an official relationship to the War Department as a branch of the government but the war department is interested in the soldier and I who have been permitted to maintain through these heroic years a close relationship to the great army naturally have the kindest interest in everything that affects their welfare and the preservation of their great traditions."

"The continued mobilization for patriotic purposes of the Americans who served their country in the grim days of war," declares Secretary Daniels, "will make for the preservation of the principles for which they fought valiantly and victoriously. It would be a distinct loss of the unity of spirit and comradeship for better things should not be crystallized in such organized forces as to make these civic crusaders as invincible for real Americanism in peace as their valour and cheerfulness made them invincible and glorious in war."

General March says: "The aims of The American Legion are of such a high character as to make certain its success and its real value to the country at large. The experiences of this war cannot fail to have had a broadening effect upon every soldier who engaged in it, and the lessons of duty to country and of loyalty to the form of government represented by the United States have been thoroughly learned by the American army. The American Legion aims to perpetuate the memories of a glorious page of our history and its non-partisan character assures its long life and prosperity."

Admiral Sims states in his message: "I hope that it will always stand for that which the American Army and Navy have fought for, and as the Army and Navy always upheld the highest traditions, so may the American Legion serve to assist us in upholding those traditions."

General Pershing says in a cable to the Legion: "It gives me much pleasure to extend to the American Legion my hearty good wishes for success of the society of veterans of the Great War. The Legion is destined to be of tremendous value in fostering the ideals and purposes for which we fought, and in spreading among our people the lessons learned in the war. I predict a most useful future for the Legion."

Major-General Barnett says: "I am proud of my membership in the American Legion, and as the recognized national organization of American veterans of the war, it has before it a great future, a future which promises loyal and useful service to America and Americans."

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

DONALD M. CALL, Second Lieutenant, Company F, Tank Corps

Lieut. Call was decorated for conspicuous bravery in action near Varennes, France, September 28, 1918. During an operation against enemy machine gun nests west of Varennes, Lieut. Call, then corporal, was in a tank with an officer, when half of the turret was knocked off by a direct artillery hit. Choked by gas from the high explosive shell, he left the tank and took cover in a shell hole thirty yards away. Seeing that the officer did not follow, and thinking that he might be alive, Corp. Call returned to the tank under intense machine gun and shell fire and carried the officer over a mile under machine gun and sniper fire to safety. Lieut. Call's home is at Larchmont Manor, N. Y.

CALIFORNIA TRYS CABINET FORM OF STATE GOVERNMENT

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 22.—California began an experiment in the cabinet form of state government today. The department of agriculture was established to control all state governmental activities of an agricultural nature.

State Horticultural Commissioner G. H. Hecke has been selected by Gov. Stephens as cabinet officer to head the new department. If the trial proves satisfactory bills will be introduced before the next legislature for a complete cabinet system of state government, with 12 departments in addition to a division of finance, to control all governmental functions.

A bill providing for the department of agriculture was passed by the legislature this spring. All laws passed during the session, except emergency measures, became effective today.

A law giving the wife equal rights with the husband in testamentary disposition of community property, among those becoming effective today, is to be fought in the courts, to test its constitutionality.

It calls for a division of the community property, unless otherwise disposed of in the will, and requires consent of both husband and wife for the testamentary disposition.

State aid for orphans is greatly increased beginning today. Orphans and half orphans will now receive $10 per month, where half orphans formerly got $6.25 and whole orphans $8.33.

State elementary school appropriations are also greatly increased; the rate being raised from $550 to $300 per teacher.

A state industrial farm for delinquent women is authorized, and $150,000 appropriated to found it.

The label "imitation milk" is required on all milk products in which any adulterants are used. This law was framed to hit milk canners who remove the butter fats from milk, replacing them with coconut oil, or other substitutes.

The revised motor-vehicle act, while raising the speed limit from 30 to 35 miles, makes many new safety regulations for auto traffic. It standardizes traffic rules by making the state rules effective in cities and towns throughout California, as well as upon the highways in the country districts.

The bolsheviks do not even pretend to rule. They are content to ruin.

Bulgaria seems to be the only real game loser among the central powers.

A few years ago some unoriginal person evolved from his inner consciousness or otherwise a collection of automobile advice which he christened "Motoring's Ten Commandments." The idea was an old one, yet the thing went well with the country editors, wherefore it had quite a vogue for a while. If the genius responsible for this brilliant idea still be alive and shining, I would like to suggest to him the addition of an eleventh commandment, so as to bring his decalogue up to the minute or rather the Sabbath day, says a writer in American Motorist. My suggestion would be something like this: "Thou shalt not use thy gasoline, nor thy neighbor's gasoline, but thou canst spend the Sabbath day cleaning out the carbon in thy cylinders, adjusting thy carburetor to the heaviest mixture ever, and thou mayst tinker with the old wagon so thou canst beat it over the hills on the morrow. Selah!"

It is said that a movement is on foot in Germany to save the ex-kaiser from being handed over to the allies. But if the British have made up their minds to get him, they will stick to their determination with the national bulldog tenacity until, like Napoleon, he is in their hands, says Baltimore American. He is too dangerous a force to be allowed at large, for any grace permitted him will be the instant signal for fresh intrigues to restore him to the throne.

Appropos of the appeal to the courts of the undesirables sentenced to deportation, no one of them has ever explained why in denouncing law and order, their first act, when faced with the consequences of the denunciation, is to ask the law to protect them in the very rights they have denounced.

Our opinion of a lack of thought conservation is for a man with a street car salary to spend his time studying catalogues trying to decide which automobile he would buy if he should unexpectedly come into possession of a fortune.
